CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

Fraudulent Imitation of STOMACH BITTERS.

WE warn the Public against a gang of scoundrels who are engaged in counterfeiting HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. These villains, who subsist by pirating, have exhibited a cunning equal to their rascality by selecting this most popular STOMACH BITTERS. Dealers from whom better things might have been expected have in some instances connived at the imposition for the purpose of sharing in the plunder.

On the principle that the receiver is as culpable as the thief, and that the passer of spurious money is as criminal as the forger, the makers and vendors of COUNTERFEIT HOSTETTER'S BITTERS stand on the same MORAL level. The great reputation acquired by the BITTERS as a cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and all debilitating diseases of the Stomach and Bowels, has tempted a host of sharks, who hope to profit by their celebrity.

Thursday Morning, June 19, 1862.

A Successor to Baron Munchausen in Canada, Lecturing on these Colonies.

Our readers will remember that we noticed a short time back an imposter named Wallace, who had been lecturing in Upper Canada on British Columbia, and who recommended himself to the people by stating that he had a brother an editor of one of our local papers, and was a cousin to the Times' correspondent. How successful he has been in gulling the Canadians out of their money, we cannot say; but apparently there is money to be made by the operation, for we observe that a Reverend Mr. Miller is also in the field lecturing on this country. This reverend sinner many of our readers may recollect as having lived here for a little over a year. He was a carpenter by trade and worked occasionally. He also dabbled in photography, a business he knew very little about, and professed to be taking views for a panorama; but he never failed to introduce himself as the Rev. Mr. Miller, broken-winded and unable to preach. Nevertheless he occasionally relieved his sanctimonious tomahawk by a fervent gush of rant and vapor. Suddenly he disappeared from "this gay and festive scene" to turn up in the Dumfries Reformer (Canada West) as a lecturer on British Columbia and Vancouver Island. With these interesting particulars from the reverend lecturer's biography, our readers will have a keener relish to enjoy what he says about this country. The Reformer introduces the subject of his lecture by stating that any one who listened to the "Rev. Mr. Miller's experience in Cariboo last year would have been effectually cured of the Gold Fever." The Montreal Witness copies the article without comment; but the patriotic editor of the St. John's (N.B.) Globe, in a melancholy strain of a column and a quarter, introduces the article as a warning to New Brunswickers, whilst the Westmoreland Times takes up the refrain in the most pathetic style imaginable. One might almost conclude from the notices and borrowings from the lecturer, that the editors of these patriotic sheets had been stuffing themselves with Goldsmith's "Deserted Village." But what will their surprise be when we state that Mr. Miller—reverend of course—never saw Cariboo; but was carpentering in Victoria last summer, or toddling round in a rickety sail-boat? Our Provincial exchanges may do well to note that fact, and they will know better what to do with the indigestible fabrications to which they have been treated. The first alarming symptom given by Mr. Miller is that the San Francisco steamboat men and hotel-keepers tried to extort money from him, and persuaded him "not to go to Queen Victoria's domains." What a combination of avarice and patriotism! Yet he went through it, and back to Canada to talk of his experience in Cariboo, where he had never been. The journey out in the steerage he qualifies by the degrees of comparison: "New York to the Isthmus, bad; to San Francisco worse; but to Victoria was utter wretchedness!" Nothing but superlative exaggeration qualifies the approach to this country. We conclude that Mr. Miller was never out of sight of the smoke of his own chimney before; never saw a passenger ship; never saw a fore-castle. We are next told that the Columbia River Bar is the terror of the Pacific Navigators; large numbers of vessels, and thousands of lives are lost there. The Rev. Baron Munchausen did it that time. For the information of our provincial readers we may state that steamers arrive here twice a month from San Francisco without touching at any intermediate point, or even sighting Columbia River Bar. So that Munchausen danger is easily escaped. Mr. Miller arrives at Victoria next. We are then treated to a gem. "The greater portion of the Island is unfit for habitation. The Hudson's Bay Company enjoy a monopoly of all land within 15 miles of the city, and outside of that it would be utterly useless for any person to settle—the distance from market, the proximity of 75,000 hostile Indians making farm life far from a safe or agreeable occupation. Besides, the Hudson's Bay Company discourage all attempts at white settlements, it being to their advantage to trade with the Indians." If pious fibbers ever go to that place, too sulphurous—too hot for ears polite—one renowned lecturer may hope for a warm corner. The truth is, that since March 30, 1860, the Hudson's Bay Company have sold, not bought land. At that time the total amount of land sold was 75,486 acres; of that amount 63,333 were owned by private parties; and outside of the town the Hudson Bay Company only owned 2,165 acres. The Puget Sound Company had 2,666 acres; and the Nanaimo Coal Company, 70 miles from Victoria, 6,193 acres. With this statement taken from official returns, the falsehood about the monopoly of all lands within 15 miles of the town is satisfactorily refuted; and shows what little reliance can be placed on Mr. Miller's statement that the greater portion of the island is unfit for habitation.

As for there being 75,000 Indians, nothing could be more untrue. The native population don't exceed a fifth of that number; and the danger is far too trifling to be named. So far as the Hudson's Bay Company discouraging settlement during Mr. Miller's residence, it is false. They are our largest merchants, and in that capacity are a great advantage to the place. The next step in the lecture is the road to Cariboo. It is set down as 650 miles from Victoria, whereas it is 175 miles less. So much for a start; but if that were all it would be a trifle. But we are told that the Cascade range at the head of navigation, is 60 miles across and 13,000 feet high! covered with perpetual snow, and that over these mountains the miners have to go on snow shoes, packing 100 lbs on their backs. We will not call Mr. Miller an imposter, but he is certainly crazy. He ought to be sent quickly to an asylum. But what else could be expected of a man who never saw Cariboo; but who liked to lecture to hear himself talk—if not gull the Canadians out of their money? We next told that British subjects can work anywhere in the mines free of taxes; but foreigners pay $8 per week to the government! The Reformer says that was the state of things when Mr. Miller was in Cariboo! Now there never was any difference made in licenses between British subjects and foreigners in the mines. All pay alike—$5 a year. We would do Mr. Miller injustice if we did not give him some credit. He says Cariboo is the richest gold country in the world. He knew a young man who took out in three months $65,000. We have not a doubt of the richness of our mines; but we don't believe any one man last year ever took out $65,000, else we should have heard it. Mr. Miller had a conversation with a Gold Commissioner in Cariboo last summer (notwithstanding he was carpentering in Victoria, and never saw the mines) and was told that out of "1500 miners there, 500 made a fortune, 500 paid their way and 500 had to beg." Next, the Colonist is demolished for telling fabulous stories about the mines, and also the Canadians here for sending home good accounts of the country. We need only say that we never read such fabulous stories before as Mr. Miller relates. Even his conclusion is in strict keeping with his commencement, for he urges upon Canadians to stay where they are, not go to these colonies which, he says, are "hurriedly peopled by the scum of nations, who neither fear God nor man." Such is the lying conclusion of the goidly Mr. Miller, and to prevent Canadians and all others in the Eastern Provinces from being gulled out of their money by listening to his lectures, we pronounce him utterly unworthy of credence—a perfect match for Baron Munchausen.

THE BRITISH COLONIST

Thursday Morning, June 19, 1862.

Copper Mining. No. 2.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:—I beg to continue the extracts from reliable authors on copper mining, as they cannot fail, I think, to be, at least to some readers, instructive, as I myself have found them:

"The large portion of the vein fissure is occupied almost invariably by the 'gangue' or 'veinstone.' This is the earthy or non-metallic portion of the lode or vein, consisting of mineral substances, of which a few are of almost universal occurrence, as associates of valuable ores. The principal one of these is quartz, which may be said to be almost never entirely absent from any vein. It occurs in a great variety of forms and colors usually more or less crystalline, sometimes beautifully so, in 'vugs' or cavities of the vein. Next carbonate of lime is most common, in the form of calcareous spar, sometimes compact and sometimes crystallized, and often passing into brown spar and dolomite. Fluor spar and heavy spar are also minerals of frequent occurrence as veinstones. Sometimes these substances form the entire mass of the vein for some distance, either singly or in groups, and are completely destitute of metallic ores; but this is not usually the case."

"The various minerals that make up the body of the lode are frequently arranged in a succession of strata or layers parallel to its walls. To make the formation of a lode easily comprehensible to the most untutored in mining, we will suppose a long trench with talcose slate forming the sides of it, (and we will call the sides the walls) and the trench filled up with boards, plank and timbers of various kinds leaning on each other at a moderate angle—so it is with a lode. We will take a well-known case for illustration as an example: After the wall of vein has been exposed, and the talcose slate then quartz, then argillaceous matter, more quartz, then blende and copper ore, then more blende and copper ore, then the strata or layers of these minerals being like the timber in the trench, of various thicknesses and subject to a variety of deviations and dislocations both during the location and after the formation of the lode. The description of one lode will suffice for all, because, although the walls may be of different materials, and the strata of the lode of other minerals, the principle of formation is the same. Cavities frequently occur in the various strata, which are called 'vugs,' as also the honey-combed portion of the veins. 'Horses' also frequently occur in the metalliferous portion of the lode. A 'horse' means a mass of mineral varying in size, found in the metalliferous veins being worked—sometimes bearing no metal whatever, at others with metal in it, but foreign to the lode in which the 'horse' is found. These horses occupy only a portion of the vein, so that the vein is found to continue on one or both sides of them the same as the smooth part of a board does along or around a knot. To return to the strata: The nature of the rock is examined with great care by the miner, some kinds being considered much more favorable to the development of ores than others. In certain districts it is believed that the redish killas is unproductive, and that the bluish gray-colored rocks are the only rich ones. These differences, though considered by miners of great importance, it is difficult to determine; indeed, it is not improvable that miners' opinions are based as much on imagination as on facts. It is certain, however, that the metalliferous contents of the lodes vary with the character of the enclosing rocks, although there are no positive rules by which it can be decided."

"One of the most important points is that of the variations in the character of lodes in depth. It is frequently alleged that true veins enrich in descending, but this opinion is not supported by facts; the records of mining, with few exceptions, show that, although this statement may be true when applied only to comparatively inconsiderable depths, yet, in general, a point is soon reached beyond which there is, on the whole, no farther increase in the value of the metallic contents of the lode. Indeed, it is maintained by some that beyond certain depths there is actual diminution in the value of Cornish ores. A reliable and experienced miner has made the following statement, which he asserts are borne out by the results of working in Cornwall: 1. Where the vein is poor at the surface it increases in richness to a certain, not very great, depth, where it reaches its maximum; from that point downwards it becomes poorer, as far down, at least, as any mines have yet been worked. 2. In those cases where the lode is rich on the surface it continues for a certain depth, which is much less than in the first case, and then decreases in value. Others deny that the veins have decreased in richness, and point to some of the deepest mines in Cornwall, which are still yielding largely, as a proof of an undiminished yield at the greatest depth attained. An examination of the statistical tables will show that there has been a gradual and constant falling off in the percentage of the ores sold for the last hundred years. This may be due, however, to improvements in the metallurgical processes, which permit the working of poorer ores with profit, such as it would not formerly have paid to smelt. Thus large quantities of old ores long rejected as valueless have been dressed and smelted, and may have their influence on the average richness of the ones as set forth in the tables."

ECONOMIST.

THE NEW WESTMINSTER "BLUNDERER."—The Columbian in its last issue asks, "Is he [the Colonist] any less a blunderer because we blunder too?" Certainly not; nor is the Columbian any the less an untrustworthy sheet because the Colonist occasionally trips up. Since our contemporary has at last acknowledged its fault and become convinced that it is not always right, we are indisposed to punish it further. When we first took it in hand it arrogated to itself, with a self-sufficient smirk, an inordinate amount of unadulterated wisdom and correctness, and whilst very anxious to hunt for holes in the skirts of its "Island neighbors," vehemently denied that there was the least approach to an error in its own columns. Having had the vainglorious wings, on which we permitted it for a considerable length of time to soar aloft, clipped short off, and having lost several of its tail-feathers, it has descended to this subsidiary sphere again, and, mortified and humiliated at its signal discomfiture, acknowledges its grievous error. With its bump of self-esteem flattened out in the late contest, we trust and believe that the Columbian will cease its foolish attempts to hold us up to public ridicule for the perpetration of trifling errors, while its own columns furnish the greatest mass of editorial blunders ever turned out of a printing office and styled a newspaper. But after the acknowledgment from our neighbor that "we blunder too," we think we can afford to pardon it for past indiscretions, and so shall permit it to wallow in the mire of its blunders and misstatements undisturbed, so long as it does not again direct its batteries against us.

FOR THE RIVER.—The steamers Eliza Anderson and Enterprise left for New Westminster yesterday morning with about 150 passengers and considerable freight and live stock. Passage on each boat was $2 and freight $3.

DEATH FROM SMALL POX AT NEW WESTMINSTER.—P. O. Smith, late of Dover, New Hampshire, U. S., aged 31 years, died of small pox at New Westminster on Saturday last.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Messrs. Franklin, at noon to-day, will offer valuable town property by auction at their salesroom. Also, the residence lately occupied by Dr. Wallace at Esquimalt.

FOR NANAIMO.—The bark Scotland sailed for Nanaimo yesterday morning. She will take a cargo of coal for San Francisco.

CARIBOO CORRESPONDENCE

Letter from Williams Creek.

The private letter given below has been handed us for publication: WILLIAMS CREEK, May 29, 1862.

DEAR — I arrived here on the 20th; left Yale on the 11th; stopped one day at Lytton, and one day at the Forks of Quesselle, besides several half days on the road. I rode to the forks of Quesselle, and then sent back the horse to Beaver Lake; not forgetting first to feed him once on the road between Beaver Lake and the Forks, and just before starting him back, with barley at 62 1/2 cts. per lb. I cannot write you anything of my travels, as when evening came I was only too glad to spread my blankets and go to sleep. I could not—even were I so disposed—do justice to the miserable condition of the road between Keilley's Creek and this place. You can form some idea next rainy season in your journey, by walking through the middle of your Johnson street slough. Try it if the mud is over your boot-top, (otherwise the comparison fails) and at every ten steps climb over a fallen tree. Do this from a. m. to p. m., varying the exercise—if you can find snow four feet deep—by walking through it waist deep. But of this you will have heard. Yesterday we rented a log house (?) for twenty dollars per month, with the proviso that we should fix it up. So we bought timber at 25c. per foot, put in a door; went into the woods with an axe and cut a beautiful sapling, with which we constructed our bunks, using the branches for featherers; and last night we had our first supper in the house, and it seemed to me the bacon went down more smoothly and the tea, for once since I started from Victoria, did not taste as though it had been made to distill its fragrance to tickle the palate of a Celestial mandarin. Even the bacon fat which we used for butter seemed more sweet and less rancid; and, of a certainty, it was very agreeable to my depleted purse not to have to step up at the Captain's office and pay $2.50 for supper, as per above bill of fare! But a truce to this. I only wanted to tell you how tired I was when night came; how cold it was, and how our chimney smoked—suggesting a good day's work in the plastering line. I must mix the mud; and who knows but I may stop a service or cement a stick with the dust of a Cayote? (Shakespeare.) I have only seen one piece of gold since my arrival, and that came out of the sluice-box of Strel & Co. yesterday, and it weighed just $50. I could go down every evening and see them wash up, and they say it looks pretty, but I have not got time enough. Later they have been washing something less than 100 oz. per day, but in a few days they will make some big washings. The Abbot & Co. are putting in their flume, and will be at work in a few days. The Cornish men will have their sluices set in a few days. Money is very scarce here, and town is being rapidly built up, and there are already three or four saloons open, there are twenty more nearly finished, and ready to receive their stocks. Of these some are intended as hotels, and a few buildings are to be used as stores. What in the name of common sense they expect to do I cannot see, for you must know that it is only 12 miles to Antler, 12 to Lightning, 4 to Lowhee, and at each of these places there are stores, restaurants and hotels. True, they could do well now, but when they get in supplies, won't we poor miners revel in luxuries at competition prices? At present there is no store in this place—that is a store with anything for sale; but the time coming, when we shall have in our cabin each man his own knife and fork, tin cup and plate, not to speak of the prospective butter and molasses. We have a good supply of flour, bacon and beans, and I have not missed a single square meal since I left Port Yale, or I should say Victoria, notwithstanding the "great scarcity" cry. But I think we may attribute much of our good luck to that same cry, as it prevented many from coming at its first intended—viz: without grub; and I must also add that we owe one to several of our packing and other friends whom we met on the road, and who, to our precaution in taking a small supply for lunch from Lytton, had forgotten a brace of friendly grouse or twelve rounds of ammunition. Just now good claims, that have been worked or well prospected, cannot be bought for less than the ground will yield at a fair calculation, without any allowance for the claim or lead to give out. The prices range from $500 to $32,000, at which latter price Beedy sold a half, of which you will have heard. So unless there is a reaction, and that is inevitable, claims cannot with safety be purchased, unless, indeed, one buys in a blind, i. e., a claim from its proximity to a good paying claim, and possible chance of having the lead run through it. This lead is a narrow strip, but it is 8 feet in width and I don't know how deep it runs—on Williams straight as an arrow; but may shoot into hill or across the creek. The salvation of all will be in the new discoveries which must be made this summer. These will be made (so I am told) southeast of this place, and not, as I had imagined, northwardly. The quartz indications grow stronger southward, and give out northwardly. The present drawback is the frozen state of the ground down to the water. * * * * *

SMALL POX.—The ravages of this most frightful disease continue unabated. It is said that there are at least ten white patients undergoing medical treatment within the limits of the town at the present moment, and the number of Siwash afflicted with the disease it is really impossible to estimate. Yesterday morning the dead body of an Indian, who had died with the small pox, was found in the bushes near the residence of Wm. Rhodes, Esq., by some colored children who were gathering flowers. An American died of the same complaint at New Westminster on Saturday last. The disease seems on the increase, and we are daily in receipt of suggestions from many citizens who favor the calling of a public meeting, and the formation of a Board of Health—a very necessary measure, and one which would no doubt receive the hearty co-operation of the authorities, who have thus far shown themselves nearly powerless to deal with the question. Fresh cases and deaths are occurring daily, and the woods contain the decaying bodies of many human beings. The streets are in a deplorably unhealthy state, and the town generally seems in a splendid condition for the further spread of the pestilence among the white population. Something should be done, and done quickly.

STRAWBERRIES.—Yesterday was a fortunate day for Mr. Thos. Troughton sent in a large basketful of "British Queens," accompanied with the cream and sugar. They were grown at Mr. Troughton's gardens, near James' Bay, and are certainly larger and finer than any we have yet seen on the Island. We were also placed in receipt yesterday of a fine lot of the strawberries from Mr. J. W. Trutch's gardens, at Fairfield. The donors believe that their gardens will yield a sufficient quantity of the fruit this season to supply the entire local demand. Mr. G. Sandrie, Government street, has the agency for the sale of the product of both gardens.

SIGNS OF RESUSCITATION.—The Rifle corps gives signs of returning life. Lieut. Col. Foster has issued a notice for the attendance of the members at the Police Barracks on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when we learn that a project having for its object the re-organization of this once promising organization will be brought forward. It is certainly high time something were done.

RUSHING THEM UP.—In consequence of the Fire Limits' Bill, introduced recently into the House, owners of lots within the proposed "limits" are preparing to cover their property with frame buildings to avoid the provisions of the proposed Act. Two frames have been commenced on Government street.

FOR STICKEN.—The sloops Hamly and Nonpareil are up for Sticken River.

PROPOSED TELEGRAPH.—The British Columbian says that it is proposed to establish a line of telegraphic wires to the diggings. The wires will no doubt be of brass—the material to be furnished at half-price by the Columbian's editorial corps, who have just now a superabundant supply on hand.

PRIZE ESSAY.—The Colonial Secretary has placed us under obligation for a copy of the Prize Essay on Vancouver Island. We have not had an opportunity to examine, but shall refer to it hereafter.

AUCTION.—At 11 o'clock this morning Mr. McCrea will sell wine, flour, and groceries at his salesroom.

Island grown strawberries were retailed at 5 cents per pound yesterday.

HYDROPHOBIA.—It may be remembered that, in the month of February last, we gave an account of a young girl having been attacked by a wolf at Bril, in the arrondissement of Nice, and of her being saved by the courage of a brigadier named Delbera. We regret to announce that this latter has just died a victim to his devotedness. The wounds which he received in his struggle with the animal were healing favorably, and his complete recovery was looked on as certain, when, about a week ago, fifty days after the event, symptoms of hydrophobia came on, and he died two days afterwards in a fearful paroxysm of madness.—Gallipoli's Messenger.

WHAT A BREWER CAN DO.—Paul Delaroché's celebrated picture of "Marie Antoinette Led to Execution," has been purchased for the enormous sum of $160,000, by a London brewer. This is, I deem, high art. Delaroché was born in 1797 and died in 1866. He was the greatest historical painter of his time. His picture "the assassination of the Duke of Guise" was bought by the Duke of Orleans for 52,000 francs. But the brewer beats this all hollow.

According to advices received by the Dutch government, the Temporal Emperor of Japan was married on the 20th of January last, his age and that of his wife amounting to only 32 years.

PERSONAL.—The afflicted will now have an opportunity of consulting Dr. J. Flattery, the highly recommended and distinguished Physician and Surgeon, from San Francisco. He will remain at the Colonial Hotel, in this city, but a few days, previous to his return to San Francisco. The Dr. is a graduate of medicine and literary gentleman, and we certainly hazard nothing in commending him to the suffering portion of our community. He presents testimonials of the highest respectability as to his skillfulness, and is provided with the latest and most improved instruments as aids to his profession. His newly invented Stethoscope, for the examination of the lungs, is a most decided improvement on the old. Also, his Laryngoscope, which concave metallic mirror, a most valuable instrument, which prepares him to convey light within the throat sufficient to expose to view its disease. His treatment for the cure of Consumption and Throat Diseases is principally by the use of medicinal Inhalations. The Dr. also gives particular attention to Female Complaints, Chronic Diseases, cases of Delicacy, Secondary Symptoms, Diseases of the Eye and Ear, and is fully prepared to perform any and even the most delicate surgical operation.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The treatment pursued by Professor Holloway for the cure of wounds and ulcers is the most simple and certain in its effects, it has been tried by hundreds of thousands, and never been known to fail; by the administration of an internal remedy (the Pills), he drives disease out, and by the administration of an external remedy (the Ointment), he heals wounds, ulcers, and the worst of external disorders. By this celebrated treatment, also, bad legs, and ulcers, are cured, even when they have been upwards of twenty years standing.

PROCLAMATION.—To all persons suffering from Asthma and Difficulty of Breathing, Consumption, Coughs, Colds and Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Pleurisy, Inflammation of the Lungs, Sore Throat, Spitting of Blood, And all other Pulmonary Affections, we proclaim a never failing remedy. 'Tis Jayne's Expectant.

THROAT DISEASES.—"Brown's" Bronchial Troches, or Cough Lozenges. From Rev. E. H. Pratt, East Woodstock, Ct. "I feel grateful to you, for placing within the reach of the suffering so valuable a remedy. I have used the Troches three years, with great benefit, not less to my general health than to my throat. I recommend them with great pleasure on every hand."
